Her testimony was instrumental in the capture and conviction of the serial killer Robert Hansen, often referred to as the "Butcher Baker" or "The Alaska Cannibal." Born in the early 1960s, Cindy's early life was marked by instability and hardship, factors that unfortunately contributed to her vulnerability to exploitation and victimization. Her story is not only about a traumatic experience but also about resilience and the importance of survivor voices in the pursuit of justice.

The Abduction and Initial Encounter

The Night of June 13, 1983

On the night of June 13, 1983, Cindy Paulson was a 17-year-old who had been working as a sex worker to support herself. She was attempting to find clients when she encountered Robert Hansen, a local man with a reputation that was unknown to her at the time. Hansen approached her in Anchorage, offering her a ride. However, the situation quickly took a terrifying turn. Hansen drove her to his property, where he held her hostage for several hours. During this ordeal, Cindy managed to escape from Hansen's residence, running to a nearby housing development where she sought help from residents.

Her Escape and Reporting to the Authorities

Cindy's escape was a pivotal moment that led to the start of a significant investigation. She reported her abduction to the police, providing a detailed description of Hansen, his vehicle, and the events that transpired. Her bravery in coming forward was crucial, as it marked the beginning of law enforcement efforts to apprehend Hansen. Her initial statements painted a picture of a man who was potentially dangerous and capable of committing other crimes, but at the time, law enforcement did not have enough evidence to link Hansen to multiple crimes.

The Investigation and Revelation of a Serial Killer

Connecting the Dots

In the months following Cindy's report, Anchorage police and FBI agents began to investigate Hansen more thoroughly. They gathered evidence and interviewed other victims and witnesses. As the investigation deepened, it became clear that Hansen was responsible for a series of disappearances and murders of young women. His obsession with hunting and killing women was uncovered through a combination of forensic evidence, victim testimonies, and investigative work.

The Role of Cindy Paulson's Testimony

Cindy's detailed account was instrumental in building the case against Hansen. This contributed significantly to the prosecution's case and the eventual convictions that followed.

The Capture and Trial of Robert Hansen

Arrest and Confession

Robert Hansen was arrested in 1983 after law enforcement linked him to multiple crimes. During interrogation, Hansen confessed to kidnapping, assaulting, and murdering numerous women. His confessions confirmed many suspicions and filled in gaps in the case. Hansen's trial began in 1984, during which prosecutors presented evidence of his crimes, including Cindy Paulson's account, forensic evidence, and testimonies from other victims.

Convictions and Sentencing
